CITY HOSPITAL PERFECT RATING

The American College of Surgeons has just completed its sixth annual survey of the hospitals of the United States and Canada, and has published a list of those hospitals which come to the standard set by them.

The Board of Managers of the Kingston City Hospital has been notified that it is included in the list. Every citizen of Kingston has reason to be proud of this announcement.

Hospital standardization is an international movement to bring about better conditions in these institutions and the best of care for the patients. Representatives of the American College of Surgeons visit the hospitals two and three times before they are approved. All hospitals are classified according to their size. Among those having from 50 to 100 beds in New York state, there are but 23 with a perfect record, and our hospital is one of these.

The American College of Surgeons requires: First, that the medical and surgical staff of the hospital shall be organized, holding monthly meetings for scientific discussion; second, that the hospital shall provide complete records of each and every patient; third, that it shall provide complete diagnostic and therapeutic facilities with special reference to laboratory and X-ray service; fourth, that the members of the staff shall be trained, and that fee-splitting will be tolerated.

The benefit of the lay reader may not be understood this term, but it may be explained that the hospital means that physicians outside the hospital in some instances recommend their patients to certain members of a hospital staff for treatment operation, especially the latter, its of the building which was void of a secret understanding that the physician gets a takeoff on every surgeon's fee. The American College of Surgeons requires every member to swear to the oath against fee-splitting practice.

In 1918 only about 13 per cent of hospitals in the U. S. and Canada came up to the standard. Since this year began, great progress and development is shown by the fact that about 46 per cent of the hospitals are recognized as meeting the requirements.

THIEVES' GANG CAPTURED

Chicago, Nov. 8.—A running gun fight between detectives and occupants of a stolen touring car believed to have figured in seven hold-ups recently, ended in the capture of one Baron and John Stankis, one of the four companions.

The three others fled on foot from the bullet riddled car, returning the "meers" fire as they ran. The girl, who has a police record, according to officers, is 18, pretty and was shamelessly dressed.

Stankis has confessed his part in the hold-ups and told them, officers said, that the driver of the alleged and car was wounded in the running fight. The car was blood spattered and strewed with bullets when captured. Anna and Stankis were chained in the rear seat.

Anna was taken to the juvenile detention home soon after her arrest. She was arrested three months ago with three youths on a charge of larceny. The four were said to have confessed the theft of more than thirty automobiles, but Anna was released after serving but two weeks of her sentence.

SAUGERTIES SATISFACTORY

The voting machines used for the first time at the election in the town of Saugerties on Tuesday, gave great satisfaction, and the results were down about an hour after the polls closed. Scarcely any difficulty was experienced by the voters in operating the machines and the obviating of the long hours of tabulating the vote as in past years, was a great relief, not only to election officials, but to the public who were anxious to ascertain what the outcome would be.

OFFICERS ELECTED IN TOWN OF ROCHESTER

The officers elected for the town of Rochester at Tuesday's election were as follows: Supervisor, James H. Enery; town clerk, Leroy M. Decker; collector, Ira Deyo; town superintendent of highways, Jacob H. Laker; assessor four years, Lorin Davis; assessor two years, Hiram Bick; justice of peace, Fred Simpson; Assa Bennett; overseer of poor, Charles Rider, John Osterhoudt.

Hunting Scene at Cohen's

Paul Purcell who has charge of window trimming at the store of S. Cohen's Sons has well represented a hunting scene in one of the show windows. The arrangement is very clever and had caused numerous comments. The other window is a full dress' window.

Secures Position

Lester Clark, a graduate of Spencer's Business School, Wall and Main streets, has been placed in a permanent position a stenographer, bookkeeper and office assistant with the Exide Battery Service Station, 10 Broadway, this city.

233 Renew Memberships In Farm Bureau And Prospect Is For More Members Than Last Year

Canvassers Will Start Out Monday and Keep Going Until First Part of December.

At the Advisory Council meeting held in Kingston Thursday, November 8, Secretary Hathaway reported that 233 members of the Ulster County Farm Bureau had already sent in their dues for the coming year without any further solicitation than the sending of a bill. This is the best record of any year to date. The canvassers will start interviewing the members who have not sent in their dues next Monday, allowing a few more days for those who have neglected to send in their dues, to do so, which would, of course, deprive them of the pleasure of meeting one of this year's canvassers.

The prospects are that the campaign which runs until the date of the annual meeting, December 5, will result in a considerably larger membership than last year.

WANT NEW CHURCH BALL TO HAVE NO DRESS INSPECTOR ON FRANKLIN ST.

A. M. E. Zion Congregation Unanimously Decides It Wants New Brick Edifice To Replace Present Building.

In spite of the stormy weather Tuesday night, there was a large attendance at the special meeting of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church. The weekly class preceded the business session and was a source of great blessing to all those who were present.

At the close of the class, the Rev. E. O. Clarke, pastor of the church, spoke briefly of the purpose of the meeting. He stated that the church building was in near-dilapidated condition and could not survive many more years without probably causing serious trouble. The congregation had outgrown the capacity of the building which was void of conveniences, and was handicapped in every instance. There must be a new church. Trying to patch up the old building would not work. He asked where they would put their children in the near future, and those who are coming from other parts. Practically nothing had been done to help in this struggle. What was needed was a community church.

"Some place is needed for our race," he said, "we have no place for our boys and girls to go, to help protect their manhood and womanhood. We cannot organize them into anything, for we have no place to meet with them. This is a serious problem that pains my heart. We have no place to go for a get-together, yet we are living in one of the dearest spots on earth, where everything and every project goes over the top but leaves us lying at the very bottom. We must arise and cry aloud in prayer that God will raise up to assist us someone with a big heart. We are all human though less fortunate."

The pastor announced that the board of trustees had met on Monday night and acted upon the project, and had come unitedly to present their decision to the congregation.

The secretary was asked to read the action of the board meeting, which was opened for discussion by the members, to voice their sentiment.

After the matter was freely discussed, a rising vote was taken which was unanimous for a new church edifice of brick construction. The quarterly conference will pass upon the decision of the board of trustees and the congregation and forward it to the bishop of this conference.

The concert and supper arranged by Club No. 2 will be held Friday evening. This is a business men's supper and will be served at six o'clock.

The Rev. Stephen McNeil will occupy the pulpit on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. There will be a concert by the choir. Lunch will be served to accommodate strangers.

APRIN WITHDRAW ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST MR. WISE

Anthony Gardeski Fined $5 For Being Drunk.

Tuesday evening Louis Aprin of No. 42 Abel street accused Benjamin Wise of assaulting him and on Wednesday swore out a warrant for Wise's arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree. The warrant was served by Sergeant Phinney. This morning in police court Aprin withdrew the charge and Wise was discharged.

Anthony Gardeski of Third avenue, arrested downtown Wednesday evening by Officer Leonard who found Anthony helplessly drunk, was arraigned and fined $5 by Judge Schirick.

Mayor-elect Morris Block acted as "Sondaka," and the ceremony was attended by relatives and friends of the happy parents.

SHIP LOAD OF RUM IN WRECK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 8.—The liquor laden British schooner Pilot, bound from Nassau to Halifax, which went aground near Bogue Inlet, N. C., Tuesday night, has pounded to pieces in the surf and is a complete wreck, according to reports received here today.

Much of her cargo, consisting of 31 barrels and over 250 cases of whiskey, was saved by federal prohibition agents, but some of it, however, was lost in the heavy sea.

The master of the ship who is said to have become bewildered and lost his course in the off shore fog, is under arrest along with five members of his crew of six. The sixth escaped.

The scene of the wreck is a lonely and forsaken spot on the bleak Carolina coast.

RUSSIA CELEBRATES SIXTH REVOLUTION ANNIVERSARY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Moscow, Nov. 8.—Soldiers patrolled the streets and airplanes hovered overhead today while the Russians celebrated the sixth anniversary of the revolution.

There were numerous processions. Commissar for War Leon Trotsky was sick and unable to review the troops, but his place was taken by Commissar Kamenev.

"Russia's long struggle makes our hearts beat stronger for the Germans who are fighting against the imperialistic yoke," declared Kamenev.

Clara Zetkin, best known of the women leaders among the German Communists, made a speech wishing that Germany had a red army of her own.

JURY EXPECTED TO GET STOKES CASE TODAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 8.—The fate of Mrs. Helen Elwoods Stokes, pretty, much as suggesting how to be well dressed, becomingly dressed, stylishly dressed. The speaker was Miss Bradley, who is connected with Macy's studio of designing, where the objective is to produce clothes of good taste at reasonable cost.

Miss Bradley quite complimented the native good taste in dress of our women when she told of working with manufacturers who were so far, so very far behind the women themselves as to good taste.

Miss Bradley warned the women that they almost always lost much in clothes becomingness because they did not give in to the things they really want to wear—and what a woman wants to wear is usually becoming to her. We no longer consider clothing just something to cover us—it should be just the right thing to make us look most attractive and best satisfied with ourselves.

And when going shopping one should go in a joyous mood to buy things to make one feel well dressed.

Then Miss Bradley warned against being frightened out of one's own ideals by the shop girl serving her. But to be as free as possible from the wiles of the shop girl, one should plan out what one wants to buy before starting out on the shopping tour.

Since our physical well being is necessary to set off our clothing, Miss Bradley called attention to the need of care of the skin; the hair; the hands and nails.

Miss Bradley made clear the necessity of keeping one's entire outfit in one color or in harmonizing colors.

Then from a large supply of garments and accessories for daytime, home work, or office, assembled many entire costumes showing what was good taste as well as becoming, from the shoe to the hat.

In closing, Miss Bradley said that when a woman is well dressed, correctly dressed, to her own satisfaction, dressed in a radiance in her personality. A charm of expression; lack of self-consciousness that gives her a poised and personable that means real charm and graciousness.

Then other reports, which will appear in tomorrow's Freeman were given.

Anderson Was Not Here

The New York newspapers this week state that William H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League, delivered a "hot" speech in the St. James M. E. Church here on Sunday. As a matter of fact Anderson did not speak in that church or any other church in Kingston as far as known.

Republican Assembly Likely To Re-enact Prohibition Enforcement Law This Session

Democratic Senate Even More Likely To See That It Doesn't Reach Governor.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 8.—With the 1924 assembly more firmly in the grasp of Republicans, talk is heard at the state capitol already to the effect that the Republican leaders plan to push through a bill early in the session restoring the Mullan-Gage prohibition enforcement law to the statute books.

There is good reason to believe, however, that such a measure would be defeated by the Democrats in the senate.

The Mullan-Gage law was repealed during the closing hours of the 1923 session when a sufficient number of Republicans cast their votes with the Democratic forces.

There is every indication that the 1924 session will be a repetition of the session of last winter. Virtually all measures recommended by Governor Smith were killed in the assembly after being approved by the senate.

Republican leaders at the capitol profess to see in Tuesday's election indications that they will be able to elect a Republican governor next year.

Democrats claim, however, that the present election means nothing as to the outcome of the 1924 gubernatorial race.

With the elevation of Minority Leader Charles D. Donohue of New York city to the supreme court bench, it is virtually certain that Maurice Bloch of New York will be selected as the Democratic leader of the assembly in 1924. Simon L. Adler of Rochester, who was re-elected, will again be leader of the Republican forces in the lower house of the legislature.

Speaker H. Edmund Machold of Jefferson is certain to succeed himself as presiding officer of the assembly.

Republican leaders are claiming that Tuesday's election was virtually a repudiation of some of the legislative measures urged at the 1923 session by Governor Smith.

WOMEN TALK ABOUT CLOTHES

These Particular Talks Being Experts On Style And Economy At At Home Bureau Meeting At St. John's Parish House.

St. John's Parish House was well filled this morning with women, members of the Ulster-County Home Bureau, who were privileged to listen to two most unusual talks on being well dressed as well as dressed at a moderate price.

Mrs. Elmer Smith, the president, presided and called on Mrs. Young to lead the women in singing some of the Home Bureau songs.

After the roll call, Mrs. Sidney from Macy's store, New York city, opened the clothes symposium with a talk on the clothes budget, which might range anywhere from $100 to $15,000 a year. In giving out the various budgets, Mrs. Sidney took note of the different sort of clothes that a woman doing her own work in her own home would want from what a business woman would need, or one who has servants in her home.

Mrs. Sidney represented the Personal Shopping Service of Macy's and after giving her valuable talk on the budget reminded her hearers that it is inadvisable to send for samples as so often the materials are gone before the samples were returned. Nor does the Macy company sell any articles for other than cash and explained how goods could be ordered.

Then came the talk that meant so much as suggesting how to be well dressed, becomingly dressed, stylishly dressed. The speaker was Miss Bradley, who is connected with Macy's studio of designing, where the objective is to produce clothes of good taste at reasonable cost.

Miss Bradley quite complimented the native good taste in dress of our women when she told of working with manufacturers who were so far, so very far behind the women themselves as to good taste.

GERMANY REJECTS NEWEST DEMAND

Which Is For Resumption of Allied Control of Country—Tension High On Eve of Anniversary of Revolution.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—Germany has rejected the French demand for resumption of inter-allied military control by a commission in Berlin "without hindrance from the Berlin government," it was learned from an authoritative source today.

(According to advices from Paris the demand for re-establishment of allied military control in German emanated from the inter-allied council of ambassadors.)

Nationalist newspapers expressed the fear that the Germans would not be able to protect the allied army officers.

Tension ran high here today. The air was filled with rumors of an impending coup.

(According to reports circulated in Berlin yesterday, the nationalists and other opponents of the Ebert-Stressemann government had set Friday, the anniversary of the 1918 revolution as the date for an uprising.)

Heavy forces of police patrol the streets.

The government is attempting to restore the value of money. Official announcement was made that the printing of paper marks would cease on November 15.

Separatist activity in the Rhine Palatinate is increasing.

At Landau they have occupied the town hall, municipal council chamber, the reichsbank building and other structures.

The public buildings in Neustadt were seized by the secessionists.

Both Landau and Neustadt are under control of French occupational forces.

The one of the fifth anniversary of the revolution finds Weimar, "the cradle of the Republic," constitutionally under the grip of the Reichswehr. General Hasse is commanding the troops.

Headed by a life and drum corps, the national defense troops swung into Weimar early in the morning. A machine gun platoon took up position in the public square in front of the Diet buildings. A cordon of troops was thrown about the structure. Machine guns were planted to command all the principal streets.

U. S. ZEPPELIN IN DANGEROUS SPOT

Latest Cause of Uncertainty About U. S. Navy's Purchase in Germany is Fear That Bavarian Nationalists Will Try to Steal It.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Munich, Nov. 8.—Bavarian Nationalist couplets have plotted to commandeer the giant Zeppelin ZR-3 which is being built for the United States Navy, according to a report in circulation here today. The mighty airship is nearing completion at the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen.

The Bavarian government is taking steps to frustrate the conspiracy fearing complications if it should be carried into effect.

The Friedrichshafen factory and the officials of the Zeppelin company are being closely guarded by police. The company is most anxious to complete the airship and land it in the United States after a trans-Atlantic voyage to add to its prestige.

The Zeppelin rights and patents were recently bought by a group of United States capitalists. The German officials are anxious for constructions of Zeppelins to continue at Akron, Ohio, without any untoward accident to the new balloon now being completed at Friedrichshafen.

It is understood that the officials of the German company are ready to sacrifice ZR-3 rather than allow it to fall into other hands than the Americans who contracted for it.

If the Nationalists make an actual attempt to seize the balloon, the officials of the Zeppelin company may go so far as to wreck the machinery to frustrate them.

Failure of the Zeppelin employees at Friedrichshafen to complete the ZR-3 in time to allow it to start on the long flight to America this autumn, has made it highly questionable whether the dirigible will ever cross the Atlantic. Conditions in Germany are so uncertain it is impossible to say what the winter will bring forth.

Particular interest is centering around the various Patou models, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. There is no avoiding the fact that Jean Patou is drawn to him the interest of the American importer. This is largely because he is a business man as well as an artist and not only makes beautiful clothes but knows how to present them and sell them.

This designer makes a most unusual skirt at the same time a most emphatic use of the flare. Practically every skirt in his line has the flare cut somewhere, either in front, at the back or on the side. The flare is so discreet, however, that it is barely noticeable. Thus it takes nothing from the straight silhouette, but rather emphasizes while softening the slender line of the body.

Patou divides woman's day into its various component parts. He over-looks no hour in the day when he may enhance the charms of the fashionable woman with beautiful clothes. There are delightful sports things, dresses for tennis, for golf, for mountain climbing, for shooting, as to make her feel that it actually is a complement to the dress. Then for snowy days and for languid southern ones, there are coats and wraps for flying, for rain and for traveling.

He shows smart little tailored suits and blouses for the morning promenade, for shopping, for the races and at a restaurant dejeuner—three-piece suits of indigo varie y from the standpoint of color and trimming. He features the ensemble consisting of dress and coat, the coat sometimes matching exactly and again contrasting in just such a way. There are tailored dresses for both morning and afternoon wear and an enchanting series of dancing dresses and tea frocks.

Beautiful Tea Gowns.

Not overlooking the woman who remains at home for tea he has made most beautiful costumes d'intérieur and tea gowns. Many of the latter will serve beautifully for intimate dinner dresses—what the French call their chez-soi.

Every imaginable thing for informal as well as elaborate evening functions has been thought out by Patou, including the gorgeous evening costume, where the dress and the coat match and are brought into harmony through similarity in color, material or trim.

As a source of inspiration for many of his trimmings, Patou has turned to Chinese, Persian and Hindu-Chinese motifs. He has had special materials woven for him by the Societe France. He has a series of beautiful patterns which he puts out under the name of "Beyruth". Another lovely material which comes in all colors is an embroidered satin called "Beran". Still another is an embroidered metal brocade which is named "Persan" and "Lame Indus" and a beautiful series of embroidered patterns called "Fleurs de Japon". There are also a lovely brocade which he puts out under the name "Laque Coromande", which is a very dull crepe on one side and on the other a satin of high luster.

Use of Double-Faced Fabrics.
He does all kinds of interesting things with this two-faced silk. A model typical of Patou's new silhouette.

all over the surface. Sometimes he uses this brocade crepe along with plain crepe in one dress.

One of Patou's evening dresses, simple in line but of most striking and beautiful metal brocade, is further enhanced by var-color and metal embroideries. He has named it "Muit de Chine".

He does another clever thing with wool reps. This material he uses with the reps line, cut both vertically and in bayadere line. It is curious what a difference this makes in the tone or surface of the fabric. It would seem as if two different materials were used.

Many of the patterns in the embroideries and brocades are done from drawings by Patou himself. One of his newest models showing his original nal treatment of embroideries consists of a dress and coat of brown velvet and beautiful Persian embroidered crepe byzantine in brown and red.

Brown Velvet Dress and Coat. Lines of the Coat Are Made to Harmonize With the Cut of the Dress, Which is of Blouse Type.

Three Afternoon Costumes.
The lines of the coat harmonize perfectly with the cut of the dress. Both the blouse of the coat and the blouse of the dress skirt flare at the same angle. The upper part of the dress is made with the beautiful Persian-patterned embroidery.

The return to the old traditions of the Haute Couture brings in its train the triumph of the full evening dress. In the restaurant, the theater or in society, the woman in the simple dinner dress cuts a poor figure beside the more brilliant full-dress; the unpretentious little dress for evening wear, easy to put on, is being de-throned by the full evening dress, and it is only simple justice, since the men discard more and more that ennobled garment, the dinner jacket, for the dress-coat. The dress-coat demands the accompaniment of a beautiful robe, very décolleté, sumptuous and brilliant.

Those in the important collections fulfill these conditions without restriction. There is an orgy of richness in lustrous fabrics, colored velvets and dazzling embroideries. The dress which symbolizes this reviving pomp is the dress called "orange," of which the sumptuous material and the original trimming together form an ensemble worthy of the Arabian Nights.

The Oriental note is strongly emphasized in all embroideries. An interesting novelty in this needlework is the introduction of tiny mirrors, such as are seen on the skirts of the Nautiche girl dancers. Some of the coats and dresses are entirely covered with Chinese and Japanese landscape designs, usually done in metal of one color only.

Black and White Effects.
There are exquisite things in metal cloth with metal embroideries and many lovely white effects with embroidery in black. Gray is quite strongly featured, particularly gray plush. A lovely, three-piece model in gray plush, trimmed with brilliant, is called "Nanon," and makes one think of the North pole.

The strictly tailor-made has not regained its vogue; the elegant woman wears it but little and only on very definite occasions, such as for traveling or for morning outings. Apart from these occasions, and often even on these occasions, the tailor-made is discarded for the cloak-dress made in woolen velvet, cotton velvet or in grain de ponde. These dresses are profusely trimmed with fur in order to give them that comfortable and warm appearance essential to a winter garment. When the tailor-made is worn the finishing touch of elegance is attained with the peer-fashionable blue or silver fox scarf.

Innumerable chemise dresses in serge, in velvet and in Smyrna cloths are shown. Women may rest easy that the chemise dress has been saved for them.

To Trap Ants.

Sprinkle a sponge with sugar to catch ants. Drop the sponge in boiling water as soon as it is full of the kitchen pests. This is a very easy method to get rid of them.

The Future.

The future of poetry. . . Is immense, because in poetry where it is worthy of its high destinies, our race as time goes on, will find an ever surer and surer stay.—Matthew Arnold.

Breadmaking Useless.

The South Sea Island housewife does not have to make bread. There is a tree in those islands called the bread tree, the fruit of which when baked in an oven looks and tastes very much like wheat bread.

Gregorian and Julian Calendars.

The length of the mean Gregorian year may be set down at 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds. The Gregorian calendar was introduced into England and her colonies in 1752, at which time the equinox had retrograded eleven days since the council of Nice in A. D. 325, when the festival of Easter was established and the equinox occurred on March 21; hence September 3, 1752, was called September 14, and at the same time the commencement of the legal year was changed from March 25 to January 1, so that the year 1753 lost the months of January and February and the first 24 days of March. The difference between the Julian and Gregorian calendar is now 12 days. Russia and the Greek church still employ the Julian calendar for civil and ecclesiastical purposes.

Warlike People of Abyssinia.

The warlike people of Abyssinia are all armed, and no man affronts another without cause. They owe allegiance to Zeoditou, granddaughter of Menelik II, emperor of Abyssinia, king of kings of Ethiopia. Zeoditou can call into the field a regular army twice as great in numbers as the standing army of the United States. Some of these warriors eat raw flesh, yet all can shoot and handle modern rapid-fire guns. Many of the customs are more barbaric than those of the Middle Ages, although Abyssinia is a Christian nation. The Christian warriors of Abyssinia fought against the Turks in Tripoli. For centuries they have kept the Mohammedans out of domination in Africa. They formed a proud and independent nation before the day of the Crusaders.

Religious Cursing.

The present movement in connection with prayer book revision in the Church of England for the removal of the imprecation psalms from the services of the church is not really anything new. So long ago as the Fourth century St. Paulinus of Nola was troubled about these psalms, and said that they must be interpreted allegorically. Thus in the one hundred and thirty-seventh he said of the words: "O daughter of Babylon . . . happy shall be he that takes thy little ones and dasheth them against a stone," he wrote that by the children of the daughter of Babylon the Christian must understand his sins, which are to be torn up and dashed against the Rock of Salvation.—Exchange.

RESULTS ARE ENCOURAGING

Results of the off year election just held are encouraging. With the exception of a few localities, there has been no serious loss in Republican prestige and in a number of instances in the New York legislature there has been a gain over last year. It is certain that at Smith's program will be carefully inspected before it is approved and that the state will not be delivered over to Tammany Hall. In Ulster county the entire Republican ticket is elected by substantial majorities in spite of the efforts of those who sought to wreck the party from within and notwithstanding the unusual strength and popularity of the Democratic nominees. The board of supervisors is Republican by a large majority ensuring a continuance of good government for the county.

MATERIAL FOR "COPY"

In reply to a writer who complains that newspapers devote so much less space to the "edifying actions" and "noble achievements" of worthy citizens than to notorious scandals and sensational crimes, the New York Times pointedly says: "What cities of newspapers seem to neglect will learn is that from all commendable conduct, as news, while reprehensible conduct is most invariably is, and so is regarded by everybody. What do these fault-finders do as they pass along the street? Do they do anything but 'God' citizens going about their daily business? Do they expect to see in a paper a list of the names of the honest and industrious? And is it the bridge over which they and other people pass safely that makes news for them or the bridge that falls with results more or less calamitous? As it changes many unpleasant things are of great importance, and of like importance is that they should have publicity, that being to a considerable degree what legal punishments are expected to be—punitive deterrent and reformative."

It must be admitted that there are newspapers that give entirely too much space to scandals and crime although it is only fair to recognize that they do it because they have good reason to believe that such feasting of the "unpleasant" is what the greater part of their public wants and demands. But having made this admission the reflecting observer can hardly fail to agree that the Times is correct in its analysis of human psychology and its view of what makes readable "copy" in this connection.

Whether innate human imperfection and frailty be involved or not, it is unquestionable that there is more to be said that is of general interest about what is wrong than about what is right. This is true not only of the news columns but of the writings of novelists, dramatists, poets, and even of the greatest of the novelists and dramatists. The novelist and poet find more dramatic and more fruitful field for psychological analysis in the tragedies of wrong doing than in the correct daily walk of estimable citizens and the theologians and moralists find more opportunity for rebuke and instruction with a view to reform.

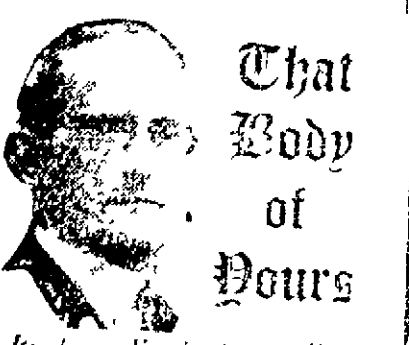

Like Milton and Dante found more extensive "copy" in hell than in heaven. Not without reason has it been said that Satan was the "hero" of Paradise Lost—not in a moral sense, of course, but as the chief dramatic figure who was given far more space than any other. The definitely known beauties of order and perfect elysium are inevitably treated briefly by the mundane writer because the line of drama and story that the world understands is lacking. On the other hand, the tragedies of the inferno or the eventual and crucial stages in the lives of the cringing, turnish abundance of readable "copy" for the writer be a fiction or a reporter for a sensational sheet.

BIGOTRY AGAIN REBUKED

Ulster county voters have again shown their sense of justice and love of liberty by endorsing Assemblyman Van Wageningen in the face of the most violent, ingenious and unscrupulous opposition and misrepresentation by the organized intolerance of not only the county, but the state and nation. In view of this result and the clear-cut issues involved, it is apparent that religious and political bigotry still in the minority in Ulster county when a man of the old moral courage to stand for the right without excess or quibbling ability in case to the voters. Other localities and other men who will stand for the temperance and prohibition must study with profit to themselves and to the world the home, fearless and open stand taken by Mr. Van Wageningen as a member of the legislature and in the campaign just ended.

In this connection the explanation offered by William H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League is that the not headed smashing discharges in Assembly elections, both instructive and entertaining, instructive as showing the methods by which Anderson seeks to uphold the notion that he is a power in politics. Anderson says "There is no clear cut against Van Wageningen of Ulster because his opponent would take no open stand." Those who have read the information of Anderson and the various side-shows of the Anti-Saloon League and heard the vilification whispered around its satellites for the past two months know how "clear" the issue was. Also everybody knows how much Ulster Van Wageningen's opponent would have been had not his opponent successfully "carried water on both shoulders" right up to the finish.

That Body of Yours

(Registered in accordance with Copyright Act)

ARE YOU A RUF?

You are not alone, does a country road and find your car 100 yds. in well worn ruts. Sometimes these pursue a zig zag course and unconsciously you have slowed your progress to a crawl. The ruts, even if slow, are a hindrance.

But as you looked at the road you saw that between the ruts and to the outer or right side was a good firm even ground. With some little effort you turn your car out of the rut up on to the better road and your progress is smoother and faster. From your position on the road you could see the ruts and choose your way.

Unfortunately with that body of yours you get into a rut of habits, that you think is the usual or easy way. You follow it blindly because it offers little resistance. You can make any speed because you have to follow the course of the rut. The sides of the rut hide the better road.

This rut is generally the usual way of living as regards food, sleep and exercise.

This often means the kind of food you like or think you can afford. It may mean five hours or nine hours of sleep each night.

It usually means little or no exercise.

Now what kind of progress can you expect from such maintenance?

Just what you get.

You have attacks of indigestion, with headache and pain. The easy or rut road is the dyspeptic's tablet. You find yourself with indigestion, that accompanies it the easy road or rut a stepping stone to a tablet.

You find your bowels inactive, constipation—with the sluggishness of mind and body. The easy or rut road a purgative.

Now why not stir yourself, even at some effort and get up out of the rut or groove?

Once you get up and see the real road of life that Nature intended for your use you'll stay up there.

WHY Great Desert Belt in Africa and Asia Grows Larger

Geographers assert that there is evidence that the great desert belt that extends across Africa and Asia at or a little above the tropic of Cancer is growing larger and drier. The Syrian desert which is now an utter waste, was crowded with cities and full of cultivated fields only two or three thousand years ago. Mesopotamia and Persia, ancient seats of civilization, could scarcely have risen so high if their climate then had been what it is now.

There are plenty of evidences that the Sahara and the Libyan deserts have encroached on the fertile lands of North Africa and of the Sudan. The old granary of Rome in Tunis is now largely an arid waste. It is not surprising if the Nile draws less water than it used to from its tributaries in the Sudan, and loses more than it used to by evaporation. Most geographers agree that the deserts are growing at present. Some believe that it is only an inevitable step in the drying up of the earth, and expect the process to go on forever though perhaps with occasional remissions.

Other scholars say that there is evidence of an extraordinary amount of fluctuation in the climate of the world, but there have been much drier periods than ours, as well as much rainier ones, and that the widening of the Northern desert band is only a phase in a long time movement of climate from wet to dry and back again. But as these secular movements are extremely slow often taking many thousands of years to complete their swing none of us now living will be here long enough to know which theory is the right one.—Cleveland Plain Dealer

HISTORY OF THE UMBRELLA

Came Originally From the East Where It Was Considered an Emblem of Royalty

The umbrella came to us from the East where it has been in use from remote times and where it was considered an emblem of royalty and dignity. Among the Greeks and Romans umbrellas were carried solely by women and it was regarded as a sign of effeminacy for a man to carry one. It is not likely that the materials used were of any use against a storm, and they were designed solely as a protection against the sun. The use of umbrellas became very general in Italy and France in the sixteenth century, and they soon became an article of luxury and fashion. Drayton in an English poem of the seventeenth century, writes:

"And like umbrellas with their feathers held out 'in all sorts of weather."

From this we must conclude that feathers and ribbons ornamented the article. Early in the eighteenth century it was the practice in England to keep umbrellas in the coffee houses as a sort of protection to guests who were caught in an unexpected shower, but the use of individual umbrellas in the home was still to come. In 1752, Colonel Wolf, an English soldier, wrote from Paris: "The case-loving French carry umbrellas with them wherever they go, and in color, material and ornamentation, they are indicative of the rank and wealth of their owners. They are used as a protection from both sun and rain. I marvel that they have not yet been made popular in England." Shortly after this they came into general use in England.

Why Pipe is Called Meerschaum.

Meerschaum is a German word designating a soft white mineral found floating on the surface of the Black Sea. In appearance it is rather suggestive of sea foam, whence arose the French name for the same substance, ecume de mer, and the popular supposition that it is sea foam. Most meerschaum is obtained from Asia Minor, chiefly from the plain of Eski-Shehr, where it occurs in irregular nodular masses in alluvial deposits. It occurs also less plentifully in Greece, Euboea and Samos, and also exists in chemical combination as serpentine in Utah, South Carolina, Pennsylvania in the United States. The principal use to which it is applied is the manufacture of a rare kind of pipe.

Nation Below the Sea Level

A Sentinel on Holland's Battle Line Against the Sea.

As the National Geographic Society (Washington, D. C.) celebrates its silver jubilee of their queen regally, usually go so quietly and feebly on their way and have so few of the turnouts and alarms that in general make up modern news, that outside world seldom appreciates the fruits of civilization; a land in which war has been transmuted into successful strife of science against nature in which thrift has all but banished poverty; and in which the human nature has developed a social system and governmental machinery that seem to bring contentment to the whole spotless, busy, industrious population.

There are paradoxes in the Netherlands that catch the eye more quickly in the solid facts. First is the matter of the country's name. To the English-speaking world it is "Holland," but in no more the correct name is "Holland." The name of our country is "Holland" is merely the name of the states of the United Netherlands.

And this only begins the paradoxes, for a country where the rivers run, to speak, over the heads of the inhabitants. Populous cities rest on the level of the sea, which personally clamors for admission. Cultivated fields are buried under unproductive sand, and marshes are drained to become fertile gardens. Holland's existence is a paradox in physical geography.

The face of the earth is usually regarded as being rather old in comparison with man and his works. But so in Holland. The Dutch have leveled and reshaped and constructed features of their land more radically than the most modern surgeon rebuild the faces of mangled war victims. A large part of the country has been wrested from the sea and is every day from its aggressive forces.

Everywhere there are canals, some small that they barely accommodate a rowboat and others so large that they will float an ocean liner. Usually, most of the canals are built, and the carrying of traffic is abundant, though in many cases a most important incident.

Elaborate Drainage Systems.
Since most of the land is below the level of the sea, the soil must be drained before it can be tilled. Ditches are dug, into which the water runs, these become full, the water is pumped into others having higher banks; then from the latter into others still higher, until finally sea-level is reached. The laws of nature are perverted. The drainage is from lower levels to higher. In the early days the water is lifted by wind power, but in the volume becomes so great and a large area of land is vitally concerned in its prompt removal that state erects a pumping station and trusted official sees to it that the water in his canal does not remain above its assigned level.

Thus the drains become greater and water and may be used as waterways. Their banks, made of sandy earth, must be reinforced by being lined with stone or fortified by piles. The case of the larger streams, the banks become dikes, and both dikes and piles are needed in order to control the waters. There is not a stone quarry in Holland, yet because its faced dikes it has more stone for the square mile than any other country in the world. Its forests are too few to supply fuel to its inhabitants; yet it has millions of cut tree trunks underground, driven to serve as building foundations or to check the washing waters. The dikes along the North sea, on the sides of the River Maas, skirting Rhine and the Zuider Zee, are lined with piles as close together as they can be driven. And these are backed by dressed German basalt or Norwegian granite.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

GOAT DRIVE—"GOOD TURN"

The "daily good turn" of the boy scout has taken many interesting forms, but among the most unique is the following goat drive which benefited numerous harassed cattle raisers. When a ranchman near the Hawaiian coast recently discovered feasting on the sparse grass of the lava stretches of his acres, a horde of wild goats which had been forced down from their mountain home by an exceptionally dry season, he concluded it was time to rid his cattle's grazing land of the pests. It was estimated that the island was troubled with about 100,000 of these hungry creatures, and the ranchman decided to enlist the aid of the boy scouts in the work of saving his pastures. The idea was to have the scouts drive the goats down to a peninsula where they could be imprisoned, and whence the ranchers would prevent their return.

With the sanction of the local executive, two hundred of the scouts were enrolled for the good turn. The first day's drive was to ten miles, but the boys were new at the work, and more than one goat evaded the line, returning joyfully to the mountain slopes. The second day's drive was a more experienced army. The work began at 6 a. m. with each boy stationed 75 yards from his neighbors, thus forming a living line ten miles in length. Each had carried a quart of water and an extra pair of shoes. The scouts had ample opportunity to show their adherence to the scout doctrine of smiling in face of difficulties, for a more difficult hike would be hard to imagine. The miles over the jagged lava were a tedious pull, as the lava resembled a confused waste of huge pieces of splintered glass. To add to the discomfort the sun beat down unmercifully. On though the heat went the valiant scouts, and just as the sun was setting in the golden glory of an Hawaiian afternoon the shaggy captives were pushed onto the neck of land which was to be their prison. The ranchman nearby estimated that in the flock were at least 10,000 full-grown goats and numerous kids.

Pumping Carefully Regulated.
Since numerous small canals are emptied by wind-driven pumps into each larger and higher one, there must be a limit to the pumping at each transfer station for water might be put into a canal more rapidly than it could be removed somewhere else.

Then, too, the canals emptying into the sea have their discharge limited by the height of the tide at their mouths. So it becomes necessary that at each station the height of water should have a fixed limit. The official in charge of each station is instructed not to pump after the water in the receiving canal has reached a certain height, and that the water in the lower canal should be kept below a certain level—that is, if it rises above that height there is danger of an overflow.

From this it can be seen that a local engineer might be embarrassed by conflicting orders. He may be forbidden to pump water into one canal because it is ready to overflow, and know at the same time that the lower canal is dangerously full. Fortunately for him, he is not called upon to worry about this. The latter condition has already been observed by the district inspector, and notices served that pumping into this lower canal should cease at once. The canals still lower might thereby be in danger of overflow, but that would cause the pumps still lower down to stop until the individual farmers would be forced to throw their wind pumps out of gear. This might cause some fields to become submerged, but the principle is observed that it is better for the water to rise gently over a few fields than to have a large canal burst its banks, and the rushing waters endanger life as well as property.

This entire question of drainage, the conduct of rivers to the sea, and the protection of exposed shores is under the direction of the Ministry of Water Affairs.

Close to Amsterdam, less than a century ago, there was an inland sea over which ships sailed and on which there was once a naval battle. Now that body of water does not exist. In its place is a beautiful, quiet, prosperous countryside of farms and gardens, roads, meadows and canals.

Here is how the lake was "exorcised" and its bottom added to the constantly growing Netherlands:
An encircling dike was constructed, with a large canal on its outer face. Great pumps, lifting a thousand cubic feet at each stroke, poured the water of the lake into the encircling canal. After thirty-nine months the commission charged with this work made the laconic report, "The lake is dry," and the medal they issued in commemoration of the event contained in Latin the inscription: "Haarlem Lake, after having for centuries assailed the surrounding fields, to enlarge itself by their destruction, conquered at last by the force of machinery, has returned to Holland its 44,280 acres of invaded land."

These acres are now occupied by about twelve thousand people, and their products are the choicest of the land. In this vast plain, so recently the foraging ground of crabs, lobsters and eels, straight roads are bordered with feathery-topped trees such as Hobbema painted; substantial and even elegant farm-houses are seen on every hand.

BOY SCOUTS LEARN FORESTRY

The first out-of-door boy scout school of forestry, the only school of its kind in the world, recently finished its initial sessions in the heart of the woods near Tuxedo, N. Y. The school is to be permanently a part of the boy scout camps at Kanawake lakes, Palisades Interstate park, N. Y. The program of instruction is under some of the best forestry experts of the East. It is planned to have two sessions yearly, one in July and one in August, each to be attended by 40 scouts.

The curriculum will be placed before the leading schools of forestry and agriculture throughout the country in an endeavor to arrange an agreement whereby work at the boy scout forestry school will be counted as on-entrance credit.

History verifies the fact that the practice of starching which came in fashion in England in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, was invented by a Spanish woman about the middle of the fifteenth century. She wished to hide a blemish on her neck with an enormous ruff.

HIGH TAXES HIT FARMERS

Report to Farm Bureau Federation Points Out Some State and National Remedies.

The farmer's tax bill last year amounted to $1,426,000,000. The entire national tax bill, for which reliable figures are available, was $7,061,000,000. Of his share of the national income the farmer paid 16.6 in taxes; all other classes of citizens paid 11.9 per cent. These figures are given in a statement on taxation prepared for the New York State Farm Bureau Federation by H. C. McKenzie of Waton, formerly tax expert of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The federation will probably make a special study of farmers' taxation during the winter.

The statement points out that farmers are paying 40 per cent more in taxes than other classes as measured by their share of the national income. This condition, Mr. McKenzie states, is largely a result of the general property tax which does not reach stocks, bonds, and other intangibles. In New York state, he says, the farmer pays a property tax on the assessed valuation of his land and if the land produces enough so he gets some income he pays a tax on the income.

"We have but one elastic element in our state tax system, the property tax. When the state expenses go up, as they did last year, from $135,000,000 to $152,000,000, the additional levy almost always falls on real estate, though there is twice as much other property. As the law now stands, one-third of the property takes up all the slack."

The remedy, Mr. McKenzie believes, is to amend the federal tax law so as to stop the leaks through tax free securities; to kill Senator Smoot's proposed "Spenders Tax"; and amend the Bank Tax Law so that banks may be taxed as are other classes. At Albany, he says, the state law should be so changed that increased taxes may be equitably distributed between property and income taxes.

FINDS CLOVER SOLVED HIS PASTURE PROBLEM

Lack of Rainfall Failed to Bother Dairyman Who Had Planned Right.

J. Smith Wilcox of Leroy proved during the past summer the value of sweet clover for pasture. Mr. Wilcox reports to the state college of agriculture at Ithaca that he pastured twelve cows on twelve acres of land continuously from early spring throughout the season and that the cows finished in good condition.

He attributes his success to the fact that fully half of the pasture was sweet clover, while the other half was good bluegrass.

In commenting on this experience of Mr. Wilcox, the agronomists at the college say that the lack of sufficient rainfall made the pasturing problem very acute for many farmers this past season. Nevertheless, they say that thousands of farmers can guard against this situation by using sweet clover in their pastures.

Even an old worn-out pasture can usually be made to produce sweet clover if lime is used and other conditions are favorable. The sweet clover will enrich the soil and make it much more favorable for desirable pasture grasses even after it is gone.

Any farmer whose pasture is poor, if it will successfully grow sweet clover, might well plow up a small portion of the old pasture and, after liming it in the fall, try some sweet clover in the spring.

What's a Baking Powder for, anyway?

TO LEAVEN your dough and give that lightness to breads, cakes and pastries which makes such foods palatable and easily digestible.

DAVIS Baking Powder has a double leavening action

First in the dough—

Just as soon as the milk or water is added to make the dough, the leavening action starts and continues while the dough becomes warm in the first heat of the oven. This first leavening prevents cracking of the crust in a "quick" oven.

And again in the oven—

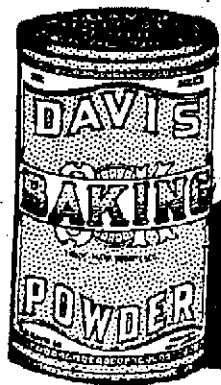

An additional or sustaining leavening action takes place in the full heat, preventing the dough from falling in a "slow" oven.

Davis double leavening means:

First—the dough will not crust and crack before it becomes "light".

Second—it will not fall in the oven.

THE SANDWICH FAMILY

The Sandwich Sisters were talking. "Of course," said Sandwich Sister One, "we come from a good old family."

"Not too old, though," said Sandwich Sister Two.

"No, no," said Sandwich Sister One. "I don't really mind about our age the way you thought I mean it."

To be sure we're not as fresh as some of our relatives are. I do not mean that in a slangy fashion either. Some of our relatives are eaten when they're quite warm, but we're always saved a day as we cut better when made into sandwiches than

"True," agreed Sandwich Sister Two.

"Yes, some slices of bread are eaten when they're fresh indeed, but, as I said before, that isn't the way with us. But when I spoke at first of having come from a good old family I meant that Bread has always been thought well of and has had the pleasure of a good reputation for many and many a year."

"Bread has been called 'the staff of life,' and of course that means that we almost support life and lives and so forth and so on. Bread has been considered so necessary, so useful, so important. And while we're the Sandwich Sisters, still we belong to the Bread family. Sometimes, as is the way with many worthy and noble things we become a little bit dull but then a jar of jam alongside or a dish of jelly puts us back on the same friendly footing with people."

"You speak strangely," said Sandwich Sister Two, "for how can we be on the same footing with people when we have no feet? That is impossible."

"Oh, I just said that as an expression," said Sandwich Sister One. "When one speaks of being on the same friendly footing with people it doesn't mean in that everyone is standing about on their feet you know. It means that everyone is feeling at ease with one another and happy and comfortable and so forth."

"Oh yes oh yes," said Sandwich Sister Two.

"Well, there are a good many of us," said Sandwich Sister One.

Quite a Plateful.

"We're quite a plate-full as you might say."

"Yes, I might say that," said Sandwich Sister Two, "and it would be quite correct. There are certainly lots of us here, but I don't believe there'll be many of us left."

"I am sure there won't be any of us left," said Sandwich Sister One. "They're expecting that even more than all of us will be eaten. There are even and ever so many more out in the kitchen waiting to be put on the plate as soon as it is emptied."

"And they're all being taken such care of out there—living cold cloths put on their heads so they won't get too warm with excitement."

"Of course I suppose one reason is that the people don't want the sandwiches to dry up but I like to think that it is because they want to pay them so much attention."

"But oh my, what a friendly family we are! Here we are, friendly Sandwich Sisters and there are so many more of us, and there is Friend Lettuce here with us—and we're just as cozy all of us together!"

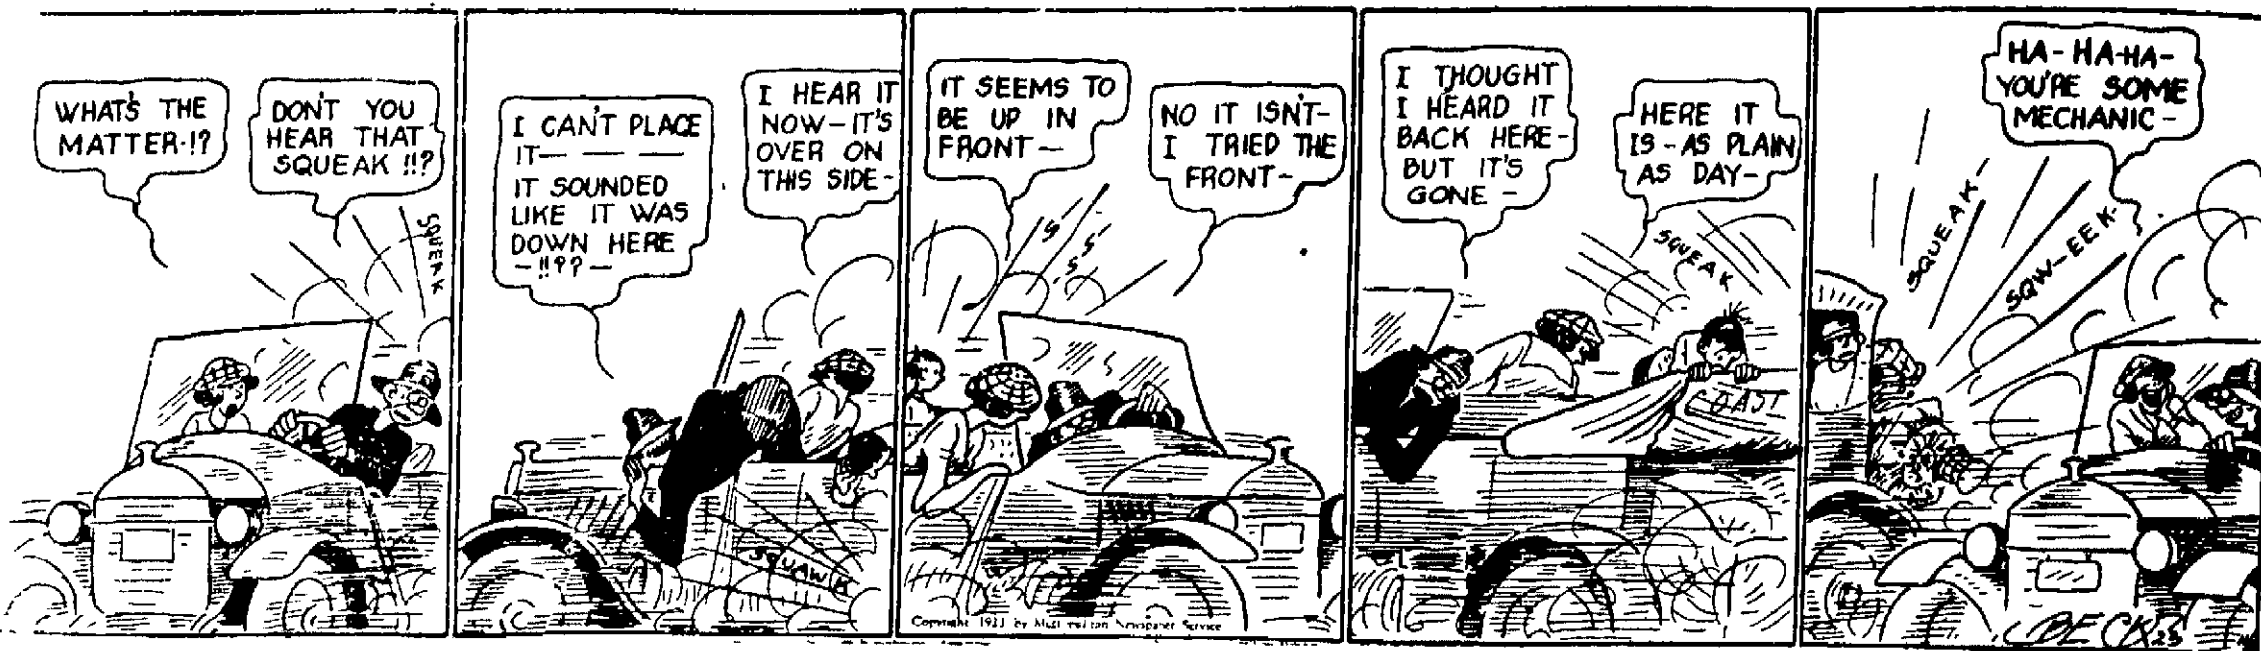

"Our family has always been famous for being friendly. We have ever so many different friends. There is Peanut Butter, a great friend of the family, and there have been lots of excellent friendships between the Tomatoes and ourselves for years."

"Then the Jelly and Jam families have been very sweet on us, and there are the Chicken slices we've been so friendly with is a family. Cheese has been a family friend, and so has Turkey—oh, a Turkey Sandwich is something very superior, I can tell you."

"Yes we've had lots and lots of friends and we've always been companionable. We've never had quarrels. Just suppose sandwiches should start quarreling and you at your side of the sandwich, doing your part as you are now, should suddenly take it upon yourself to lose your temper and fly about in a rage. Well, there'd be no sandwich, that would be the result of that. We know that, so we each do our own part to make this sandwich, together with the work of Friend Lettuce. Yes, the Sandwich family is a friendly family and always has been."

And the other Sandwich Sister agreed.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

With a little cold leftover chicken one may have a most tasty dish, try:

Chicken Hot Landaise.—Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter and one teaspoonful of finely chopped onion five minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and gradually one cupful of chicken stock. Bring to the boiling point and add one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and one and one-third cupfuls of cold, cooked chicken cut into dice. When well heated add the yolk of an egg slightly beaten and cook one minute. Serve with hot rice timbales.

Rabbit à la Southern.—Dress, do joint and wash well two rabbits, give them the treatment used for the pot roasted rabbits. Try out half pound of bacon cut into pieces (there should be two-thirds of a cupful of fat). Put into an iron kettle or frying pan with the rabbit, cover and cook slowly one and one-half hours, turning frequently. Pour over one cupful of milk and cook thirty minutes.

Quick Dinner Biscuits.—Mix and sift one and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, three and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt. Add three table spoonfuls of lard, when well mixed add one-third of a cupful of milk and one-third cupful of water, mixing quickly. Drop by spoonfuls into buttered, hot, iron gem pans and bake in a hot oven fifteen minutes.

Peach Tapioca.—Drain a can of peaches, sprinkle with four table spoonfuls of powdered sugar and let stand an hour. Soak one cupful of pearl tapioca in cold water to cover. To the peach sirup add enough boiling water to make three cupfuls, heat to the boiling point and add the tapioca drained from the cold water, one half cupful of sugar, one half teaspoonful of salt, then cook all together in double boiler until transparent. Lin pudding dish with the peaches cut into quarters, fill with tapioca and bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes. Serve hot or cold with cream.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 35 inch size requires 4 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. The width at the foot with plaits extended is 2 1/4 yards. METHOD AND SYSTEM TRUE BASIS OF PERSONAL THRIFT

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

"I can't understand why I am always running behind in my personal financial affairs," a man who earns a handsome salary said to the writer some time ago. When asked if he kept a record of his expenditures, he replied that he was too busy to be bothered with such details. "Try the experiment for a month," suggested the writer, "and you will have the answer to your question."

The plan was tried. Every penny of expense was jotted down and at the end of the month the man found that he had spent about $100 more than he had thought was his custom.

That explained the reason why he was always in a quandary about his personal affairs. When he was brought face to face with conditions he began to change his habits, and his situation improved in like proportion.

There are no doubt many such persons as the one referred to who constantly are running behind and cannot understand why.

The very first step must be a daily record of expenditures. We dare say that the majority of those who begin this plan will soon be astonished at the amount of money they waste during the course of a month.

Figures do not lie. You can't spend your money and have it. If you want to spend constructively and save wisely you must eliminate the little wastes.

Above everything else you must know what you are doing. You cannot build yourself up on the shifting sands of ignorance or indifference.

It may seem like a waste of time and effort to keep a strict record of every penny you spend, but it is the best method of getting on the right track in the management of your personal affairs.

Personal thrift, like business efficiency, is a matter of method and system. It must be founded on complete knowledge of one's affairs.

Fall Plowing Good Practice.

Any time before the soil freezes is a good time for fall plowing. Farmers are likely to be more rushed in the spring than during November.

The winter freezing of plowed land tends to put it in fine physical condition. One can seed oats earlier on fall-plowed land than if he must wait for the soil to dry out for spring plowing. experience shows.

GUARD HERDS
FROM REINFECTION

Fight Against Tuberculosis Demands
External Vigilance of Dairymen—
Some Things to Watch.

In fighting tuberculosis in cattle the old reliable external vigilance is as much the price of victory as in any other contest.

Men about the state who are most closely in touch with dairy conditions say there is grave danger of reinfection even after the herd is clean.

They say that special care should be exercised in cleaning and disinfecting a barn after the removal of reactors. The dairymen should be sure that every corner is scrubbed, cleaned and disinfected.

The danger that cows from a clean herd will be infected at fairs, stock shows and sales is also said to be great. The cattlemen at the state agricultural college at Ithaca go so far as to say that the farmer with the clean herd should refuse to exhibit his stock unless he is quite sure that the regulations permitting only the entry of tuberculin-tested stock are strictly enforced.

The pasture offers another source of infection. Even if the farmer is sure his herd is clean, the cattle may get the germs from a stream which carries them from another pasture, in which tubercular cows are kept. One herd was known to have become infected by drinking from a stream which flowed through a slaughter house yard where reactors were killed.

The calves need to be protected. They should not be fed milk which is even suspected of harboring the germs. Such milk can be made safe only by holding it at a temperature of 150 degrees for twenty minutes.

AGRICULTURE

A checking account is as necessary to the farmer as to any other business man.

Jack Frost got in his tricks so early that good seed corn is scarce. Get your supply while the getting is good.

Artificial lights, properly used, make poultry keeping more profitable. But one shouldn't forget that "properly used."

Uncle Ab says he's getting so that he doesn't care so much how long it takes to do a job, just so it's right when it's done.

Sometimes it's lack of time and sometimes it's just indifference that leaves farm machinery neglected and broken from one season to the next.

If you're that individual they call the "average American," you ate 3.2 bushels of potatoes last year. The "average European" eats from 10 to 25 bushels.

OLD HOMESTEAD GIVEN FOR COMMUNITY CENTER.

Pulaski May Have Suggestion for Other Towns.

Word comes from Pulaski of the gift as a community center of what was known as the "Meacham homestead." The department of rural social organization at the state college at Ithaca sees in this gift a suggestion for other towns and villages in New York state.

In many places, it is pointed out, are fine old homes which are likely to pass into the hands of strangers upon the death of present owners. If attention could be directed to the desirability of leaving such homes for the welfare of the entire community, the social life of these places might be enriched.

The Pulaski Democrat, in telling of the gift to the community of the Meacham home, explains how its last owner, now a resident of Ohio, decided to turn it over to three local organizations as a memorial to his family which had played a large part in the early history of Pulaski.

The three organizations are the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Pulaski Historical Club and the Pulaski Civic Club. These organizations have formed an organization known as the Meacham Community Center, Inc.

The Community Center recently was formally thrown open to the public.

DISTINGUISHED MINISTERS OF FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Editor, The Freeman:

The First Presbyterian Church of Kingston has been so important a factor in the civil and religious life of Kingston for so many years. Its ministers have held so high a rank in our community that I venture to supplement the interesting list of them contained in Russell Dana's paper read upon the laying of the cornerstone of the addition to the existing church edifice by the names of the ministers who preceded those named by him immediately upon the founding of the church in 1853, the congregation called as its first minister the Reverend Henry W. Smuller, D. D., one of the most eloquent clergymen who has filled a Kingston pulpit. Following Dr. Smuller came the Reverend John Lillie, D. D., a graduate of the University of Glasgow, and a Doctor of Divinity of the University of Edinburgh, one of the most scholarly of men. His commentaries upon the Epistles of St. Peter published by Scribner something like sixty years ago, were regarded as they are today, as masterpieces of Scriptural commentary and exposition. He died while pastor of the church and a tablet was erected to his memory in the wall of the church edifice on Clinton avenue. Dr. Lillie was succeeded by the Reverend Hamilton Holmes, a talented younger man, the nephew of the Reverend Mancius Hutton, D. D., of the Collegiate Church of New York. Mr. Holmes was extremely popular with the younger element of his congregation. All of these men adorned the pulpit of the church.

Respectfully,
A. T. CLEARWATER.

FEE-RODIOUS BOBOAT IN PONCKHOCKIE WOODS (Contributed.)

Kenneth Stalter and Fred Planthaber had a narrow escape in the Ponckhockie woods Wednesday. While they were walking through the woods they heard a scream and immediately turning around saw a bobcat ready to spring on them, when Stalter pulled up his gun and wounded him. After shot was fired the boys did not stop running until they reached Lindsley avenue.

SONGS TELL AGE

Recognizing Old-Time Ballads Dangerous Pastime.

As Record of Periods in Recent American History Nothing Can Compare With Songs of the Hour.

One of the surest methods of revealing your age when you wish to conceal it is to recall past popular melodies. Beware of the popular song if you are sensitive about your age. As a historical record of periods in recent American history nothing can compare with the songs of the hour.

You may hide your birthday spoon. You may hush your sister's too revealing reminiscences. You may declare you never saw a cable car, but temptation will whisper in your ear when someone begins to recall "In the Good Old Summer Time." The time will come when the banana famine just now rampant in the song world will reveal just as certainly the age of these fair flappers who today are singing it at work and play.

Contemporaneous melody will cheat them of the woman's heritage of prolonged youth just as "Sweet Adeline" has spoiled many women's plans. You sit around after dinner in a party of friends. Some one tells how his father used to sing "My Darling Nellie Gray." He pictures poor Nellie on her way to Georgia, "there to wear her life away." You note he has left out the part you always liked so well—that about her floating down the river in a little red canoe. Beware. You will want to contribute. Keep your wits about you.

If some one begins to bring up the war songs, don't get your wits mixed. Remember that it was in the Civil war that the sweet potato came springing from the ground and not in the World war.

Do not display your memory with that one "For You a Rose." That was in the sentimental period of the popular song. If you do the party will make mental reservations of your age. Keep your eyes open when they begin to draw you out by asking what was the first jazz song. As soon as you mention one a young woman in the party will exclaim that she does not remember a time when there was no jazz.—New York Sun and Globe.

Slow to Alpine Business

The Italian decree prohibiting the use of the words "Tyrol" and "Tyrolese" has not only brought confusion to the population of the Upper Adige, the recovered Italia Irredenta, but is also in contradiction to the Treaty of London of April 8, 1915, by the terms of which Italy entered the war. Article 4 of that treaty makes free use of the word. The decree hits particularly hard the manufacturers of picture cards, and hotel proprietors, all of whom, whether Italian or German, have gloried in the name forbidden. And what is the Alpine hat, "the Tyrolese," to be called? In conformity with the decree, the paper Der Tiroler of Bozzen (Bozen) has changed its title to Der Landsmann, but with the added significant title "Journal of the Germans South of the Brenner."

Nothing Else But.

Newlywed was on his honeymoon and as he had married a very pretty girl he missed no chance of telling everybody with whom he came in contact that he was a married man.

"I want rooms," he announced as he approached the hotel clerk, trying to appear as nonchalant as possible. "Certainly, sir," said the clerk. "For how many?"

"For myself and wife," replied Newlywed.

"Yes, sir," said the clerk. "Suite, sir?"

"Sweet!" cried Newlywed. "Of course she is."—Exchange.

Races Aid Wire Firms.

Controller Lee, of the Central telegraph office of the British government, recently said before a select committee of the house of commons that industrial disturbances caused a great increase in the number of telegrams dealt with by his department, and that horse racing was responsible for an enormous addition to his labors. He added: "Of 36,000,000 telegrams passing through the Central telegraph office every year, 2,500,000 are in connection with horse racing, and of 72,000,000 in the country at large more than 5,000,000 have the same origin."

Mr. Peeble—What's the idea of doing that?

Getting the Habit.

"I notice that you go to your desk pretty regularly of late," said one wealthy man to another.

"Yes," was the reply. "I used to play golf to take my mind off my work, but I got so interested in the game that now I have to work to get my mind off golf."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Learning to Swim.

Wife had called at the office. "And what," asked indulgent hubby, "does my angel want today?"

"A pair of water wings."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

DESTROYS FLAVOR OF MEAT

Government Experts Find Use of Papain Is Unsatisfactory for Making Tough Cuts Tender.

Suggestions have frequently been made to nutrition workers in the United States Department of Agriculture to the effect that papaya leaves and also dried powder made from the fruit of the pawpaw could be used to make meats tender. Both the leaf and the fruit contain an enzyme which digests protein. A series of experiments conducted by the bureau of home economics shows, however, that papain in either of these forms cannot be considered desirable for rendering tough meat tender.

A solution of the powder was applied to cuts of meat from the shoulder and round, which were then separately cooked by boiling, frying, and broiling. The enzymes acted rapidly on the connective tissues, especially when the meat was boiled, but the muscle fibers were made powdery and pasty at the surface. The meat was dry, lacked natural meat flavor, and had a bitter taste.

When the papaya leaves were crushed to extract the juice and wrapped around the meat for periods ranging from 6 to 26 hours at both room and refrigerator temperatures, the wrapped meat was slightly more tender than the untreated sample, but tasted decidedly of the green and bitter juice of the leaves.

Additional leaves were obtained from Miami, Fla., through the office of foreign seed and plant introduction. Results with these leaves were no more satisfactory than when papaya leaves grown in the botanical gardens at Washington, D. C., were used. In all cases the characteristic meat flavor tended to disappear and was replaced more or less by other flavors, particularly by a bitter flavor in some cases.

Produced 93.9 Tons of Milk.

Seventeen years old and having produced 93.9 tons of milk, 919 tons of butterfat and still producing is the record of Artis Piebe De Kool of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture herd. This showing is surpassed by few cows. Freshening at the age of two, fifteen years ago, she has since that time produced a daily average of 34.3 pounds of milk. She was not in milk during the entire period, having gone two years without freshening prior to her last freshening. Stable records for the fifteen years show that her average yearly production was 12,250 pounds of milk and 426.19 pounds of butterfat. During five years, she produced more than 500 pounds of fat. Artis has consumed in the way of food 65 tons of silage, 28 tons of concentrates, more than 18 tons of hay, and 17 tons of roots and selling crops.

Off on the Wrong Foot

The principal of a certain school prided himself on the speed with which his pupils went through the fire drill. When he asked them, "What would you do if I told you there was a fire in the building?" the answer he had taught them rolled with astonishing glibness from their tongues.

One day Dr. Henry Van Dyke was to lecture to the pupils. In introducing him the principal asked, "Now, children, what would you do if I told you that Dr. Henry Van Dyke was to lecture here today?"

And three hundred voices responded in sing-song, "We would rise promptly, put away our books and then quietly and without disorder, but as quickly as possible, file out to the street."

Underground Mountains

A curious result of operations by the Trigonometrical society in India is the conclusion stated by Major Burrard, that there is in the middle of India an underground or buried mountain range, a thousand miles in length and lying about parallel with the chain of the Himalayas. This conclusion is based on the singularities of the local attraction of gravitation in central India, the plumb-line being deflected southward on the north side of the supposed subterranean chain and northward on the south side, leading to the inference that a great elongated mass of rock of excessive density underlies the surface of the earth between the two sets of observing stations.

Not All There.

Elizabeth came to school one day in a state of suppressed excitement. Going straight to the teacher's desk she exclaimed exultantly, "I've got a new little sister!"

"How very nice," replied the teacher.

"Yes," said Elizabeth, "but this is only a half-sister."

"Why, that doesn't make any difference does it?"

"Not, but I never can understand where the other half is."—Harper's Magazine.

A Nice Way to Put It.

A celebrated actor and his wife were having a good-natured argument. As the man had a train to catch he did not let it run its full course, but gave way suddenly. Rising, he exclaimed with a generous air, "You are right and I am wrong, as you generally are. Good-by, my dear," and off he hastened. "So nice of him to put it like that," his wife reflected, but then she wondered.

Disillusionment.

Bella—Do you believe in love at first sight, dearie?

Donna—I certainly don't. The first time I saw Jack Morton was in a swell limousine and I fell desperately in love with him. I found out later he had only hired the car.

JUNIOR LEAGUE FETE SURPRISES

Thanksgiving Eve Fete at Armory
Will Have Famous Orchestra and Interesting Entertainment—Plans
Progressing Rapidly.

Arrangements for the Junior League fete to be held at the Armory Thanksgiving Eve, November 28, are rapidly being perfected. The committees having charge of the entertainment have reported progress along their various lines.

A unique feature of this fete is the absence of a patron list. The nature of the entertainment to be provided will of itself attract a large audience, and the Junior League feels that in this instance it will not be necessary to ask for subscriptions from a patron list.

The proceeds from the fete will be used for the Baby Welfare Work, notice of which has appeared frequently in The Freeman. Considerable expense is attached to this work by reason of the employment of a nurse to care for children of pre-school age. One importance of this service and its value to the community has been fully demonstrated in the work already accomplished.

Although definite arrangements have already been made for the music, the Junior League has not as yet offered for publicity the name of the orchestra engaged. This is in the nature of a surprise, which will be announced later. It is stated, however, that the orchestra is from New York city and is nationally famous. Considerable interest has been aroused in this connection and the anticipated announcement is eagerly looked forward to.

The Junior League invites all to attend this fete, first only because those doing so will help a worthy cause, but also because the entertainment planned will be worth the price of admission.

Tickets will be on sale soon at various places to be announced later. The price of admission will be considered extremely low. The name of the orchestra engaged is announced.

"CATSKILL NIGHTINGALE" SINGS

Miss Emily Day Gives Her First Concert.

Miss Emily Day, soprano, gave her first song recital here Wednesday in Aeolian Hall. This singer, who comes from the Catskills region, was announced as "The Catskill nightingale" and, as it proved, one in some respects beyond her present vocal powers. The list included airs by Bach, Handel and Hadyn. Proch's theme and variations, airs from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and "The Magic Flute," German lieder and an air from "Coq d'Or." The singer disclosed a clear voice of good range and some commendable technique. Her coloratura work lacked finish and her general style had insufficient color. A friendly audience applauded her singing.—New York Herald.

Novel Divorce Case.
In the court of Tioga county, Pa. Alzina M. Mosher was recently granted a divorce from her husband, Albert J. Mosher. Mrs. Mosher, who brought the action, is well past the three score and ten mark. Fifty years ago she lived with her husband two years and bore him two children, after which they separated. All these years they have lived in the same neighborhood, but after a half century of deliberation the woman was bitten by the bug of "emancipation" and claimed her freedom. Her chief witnesses were "girls" of her own age, who retold the dead romance.

Mia Sarcastic Fling.

"I don't like to invite Mrs. Newrich to my bridge party, and yet she's a sure loser and a good pay."
"I don't see how you are going to get her money without her company," said the sarcastic husband. "What do you expect her to do, frame your invitation and send you a check?"—Boston Transcript.

SUPERSTITION IN RUSSIA

Peasants Employ Formulae of Dark Ages in Their Treatment of Sick Persons.

In the Volga government of soviet Russia the peasants lay people sick with the fever. In the snow naked, so that "the cold wind can blow away the heat." Prayers and pious formulae are constantly resorted to.

An exorcism is written upon a card and hung around the patient's neck and he is not permitted to eat or drink anything for three days. In order that he may experience the full healing effect of this charm. If he does not recover, then his family and relatives beat him with clubs, brooms and anything they can lay their hands on, in order to "chase out the devil."

In many cases the sick man is hitched to a plow, and after he has plowed a while he is put in a Russian vapor bath and later massaged with petroleum and tar—usually until he dies. Little children are rolled in dough and put in hot vapor baths, under the impression that this protection makes it easier for them to stand the heat. A popular preventive of cholera is to bury alive in the yard dogs, hogs or poultry.

Lynch law is constantly practiced, especially in the famine districts. In some cases a victim of village justice is tied behind a wagon and dragged through the streets for hours.

While the soviet government is energetically combating such brutality and superstitions, it simultaneously encourages them by its hostility to religion and studied contempt for the church.—Georg Topoff, in the Frankfurter Zeitung.

LESSON TAUGHT BY ARTISTS

They Have Made Every Phase and Object of the Material World Interesting.

Raphael has made infantile grace obvious to unmaternal eyes; Turner opened to many a preoccupied vision the wonders of atmosphere; Constable guided our perception of the casual phenomena of wind; Landseer, that of the natural language of the brute creation; Lely, of the coiffure; Michelangelo, of physical grandeur; Rolye, of fish; Gerard Dow, of cattle; Cypri, of meadows; Cooper, of cattle; Stanfield, of the sea; and so on through every department of pictorial art. Inausibly these quiet but persuasive teachers have made every phase and object of the material world interesting, environed them with more or less of romance, by such revelations of their latent beauty and meaning; so that, thus instructed, the sunset and the pastoral landscape, the moss-grown arch and the craggy seashore, the twilight grove and the swaying cornfield, an old mill, a peasant, light and shade, form and feature, perspective and anatomy, a smile, a gesture, a cloud, a waterfall, weatherstains, leaves, deer—every object in nature, and every impress of the elements, speaks more effectively to the imagination.—Henry T. Tuckerman.

Yankee Tourists in Switzerland.
About 10 per cent of the visitors to the various resorts in Switzerland during the summer of 1922 were from the United States, according to Swiss estimates forwarded to the department of commerce by A. H. McGruder, secretary to the legation at Bern. The estimate places the number of Swiss visitors at about half of the total; England's contribution at 10 per cent; France, 7 per cent. Holland, 5.6 per cent and Germany, 4 per cent. More than 50 per cent of those who visit the first-class hotels are American. Mr. McGruder states, the next in order being the British, with less than 20 per cent.

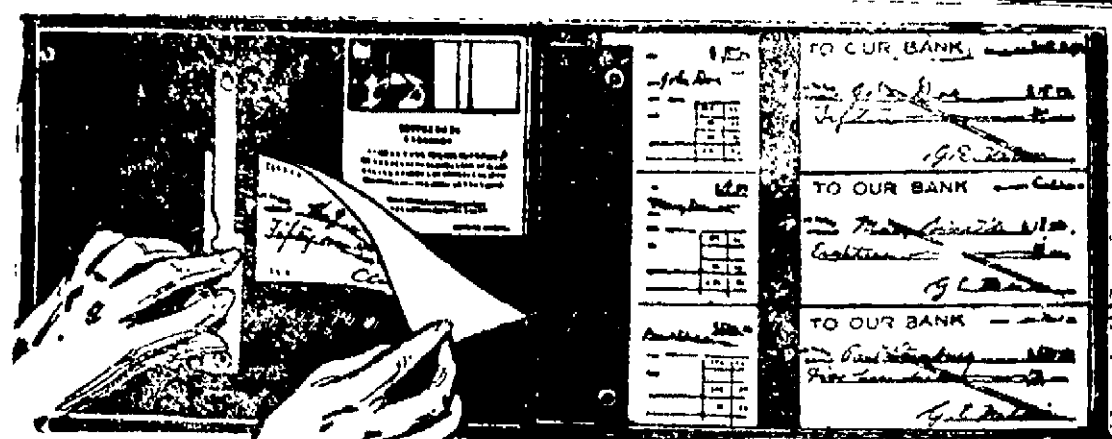

"Kill Your Cig."
Sweden is campaigning against careless cigarette habits, the cause of so many fires. A lighted cigarette, thrown down by a youth in a sawmill, started a fire which was not extinguished until nearly $2,000,000 worth of property had been destroyed. Other large fires have been started in the same way. The Fire Prevention society suggested to the Swedish Tobacco monopoly, which controls the output of cigarettes in Sweden, to print the warning, "Kill your cigarette when you have done with it," on every package, and the executives of the company immediately agreed to adopt the suggestion.

An Accomplished Wife.
"His wife is an excellent cook."
"Lucky man."
"She makes the children's clothes, her own dresses and hats; designs and makes her lamp shades and window drapes; keeps a garden, does her own canning."
"What a lot of accomplishments; and to think my wife is just good looking!"

That's Easy.
First Lady—So glad I've met you here. I hope you'll forgive the short notice and lunch with me tomorrow.
Second Lady (equal to the occasion).—Thanks; I'm lunching with Lady Essex.
First Lady—Really? Well, if you can go early she might bring you on when she comes to me.—Punch.

Call of Duty.
"Don't you think sitting up till three in the morning at a poker table interferes with your regular duties?"
"Friend," responded Cactus Joe, "when you're lost 17 stacks in the early evening there ain't any duty that seems more urgent than sittin' close up an' tryin' to rescue your perishin' fortunes."

Platinum Wire.
Platinum wire has been drawn so fine that 20,000 pieces of it placed side by side would not cover more than an inch, while 150 pieces bound together would be necessary to form a thread as thick as a filament of raw silk.

to Our Depositors

To combat the numerous frauds caused by "raising" checks, we have adopted the Protectu Check System. Each Protectu check has a series of numbers lithographed in indelible ink at the end of each check [like a money order]. By a cutting device provided with each check book, the end can be torn so that the highest amount indicated on the margin of the check represents the maximum amount of check.

This special size business check book, three checks to a page, is suitable for all business firms.

Protectu checks may also be had in two pocket size.

If you are considering opening a checking account, by all means come in and see this additional service that we are giving free to our patrons.

NEW LIGHT ON EARLY HERO

Letters Found in Washington Tell of Col. R. H. Harrison's Career and Its Climax.

William Tyler Page, clerk of the house of representatives, made a fortunate discovery in the dusty record shelves of the house this summer. He brought to light in one dusty package seven letters in the hand of George Washington and letters as well from Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, John Jay, the Marquis de Lafayette and Col. Robert Hanson Harrison, who was General Washington's secretary for six years of the Revolutionary war and concerning whom all of the letters were written.

Historians, especially those of Maryland, will set high store by Mr. Page's treasure trove, says the Detroit News, for one of the letters throws a new light on a hero of the Revolution and will require a correction to be made in every biographical encyclopedia that relates his career. It shows that career had a dramatic climax not hitherto suspected by the history writers.

It tells how Col. Robert Hanson Harrison, who had given the best years of his life to the young republic as a soldier, was prevailed upon, against his private desires and interests, to come to its aid again, this time as one of the first judges of the newly created Supreme court; and how he was unable to complete his journey to New York, then the capital, but was dragged down by illness on the way and obliged to return home, there to die.

HE KNEW THE HIDING PLACE

How General Sherman, Inspecting West Point, Found Contraband Cigars in His Old Room.

Speaking of West Point and its traditions recalls a story that is told of General Sherman when he was commanding general of the army, after the Civil war.

With several other distinguished visitors, he made an inspection of the West Point barracks. Finally he entered a room in one of the divisions and the two cadets occupying the same sprang to attention.

Sherman smiled, as is the custom, then drawled, "Any contraband in this room?"

When neither of the cadets replied, the general, with a smile on his face, stooped down before the fireplace and, reaching up, removed a loose brick. Putting in his hand he drew forth several cigars. This was in the days when no smoking was allowed.

"Thought so," said the general. "I used to hide 'em there myself."

It was Sherman's old room. Of course the general didn't report the find. That was Sherman's way.

southern coast and the Mergul Islands off southern Burma. The latter are exploited by Japanese divers, and the production enters only slightly into Burmese exports.

To Develop Southern Mountains.
A wealthy philanthropist has given a million dollars to the University of Kentucky to be spent in studying how to make the southern mountains produce a good living for the people who inhabit them. The problem is to discover the crops and the methods best suited to the hill lands. Through experiments that will begin at once the men in charge will test in the hill regions the commercial possibilities of raising various kinds of live stock and the suitability of different grasses and crops. With proper methods and more knowledge the isolated mountaineer may be able to make a better living than he has made hitherto.—Youth's Companion.

Seventy-Three Years Married.
The longest matrimonial record in the history of the pension office of the Department of Interior at Washington was a claim for a pension by Catherine A. Wheeler of Union, Okla. It showed that Mrs. Wheeler had lived with her husband, a Civil war veteran, for 73 years, 3 months and 9 days. She was married to him in Edgar county, Illinois, on December 9, 1849, and he died March 18, 1923, in Union, Okla. Mrs. Wheeler is ninety-one years old, and her husband, Andrew Y. Wheeler, was ninety-eight at the time of his death. He served in the Twenty-eighth Illinois Infantry, and was on the pension rolls for many years.

One Kind of Wisdom.
Jed Jenkins says a man often gets the reputation for being wise by knowing a lot of things that nobody is particularly interested in.

As Result of Beating Trenton 25 to 15 Wednesday Night—Ricorda Plays Good Game and is Tied For Scoring Honors.

Frank Morgenweck's aggressive squad displayed for the first time this season on the local armory court that they could carry their strength through both periods, outscoring their opponents and gaining a greater lead than they had at the closing time of the first session. Going into the struggle at the night cap period the Morgenweckers were but one point ahead, the score standing 11 to 10, but at the close the local representatives had a seven point lead, 25 to 18.

Harry Ricorda played his usual hard game and came out of the contest with ten points. Glasco, playing forward for the Trenton team, tied Ricorda for the scoring honors. Glasco shot five pretty baskets from long distance.

By winning last night's game Kingston dethroned Trenton and goes into second place. This victory also tied the games with Trenton one all. Local fandom is further impressed from last night's exhibition that Kingston has a squad that can battle the leading division contenders and can be considered contenders for the much coveted flag for the first half schedule.

The success of the home club to date is absolutely due to its insurmountable team work. Especially in the struggle with Trenton in the final period did this team work prove potent. The local club seems to be lacking in a long distance shot and therefore their passwork had to be carried into close quarters near the basket.

Referee Corrigan also made his first visit on a Kingston court and his work had a slight edge on those seen here so far this season, which is saying a good deal for Corrigan. The referee's work looked good to local fandom, but one elongated Meehan, the lofty center of the visiting team, was refractory during thirty-five minutes of play. In the final five minutes Morris Tome, Kingston player of yesterday, replaced Meehan at center.

During the first half Kingston had 14 shots from the complimentary line but were only able to make good half of that number. C. Powers and Husta each made a field. Out of ten chances from the free throw mark Trenton made good but two. In this period Glasco shot three fields and Husta one.

In the final period out of 12 chances from the free throw line Kingston made good eight. Two fields by Ricorda and one by Dolan, completed the score. Out of eight chances the Trenton team made good but two. Glasco also made two more fields this period and Meehan registered from the field.

Beginning the contest the local quarter started off at great speed, when they scored six points in a row. With this lead as a starter the Morgenweck crew were never headed during the entire game. In the beginning of the second period the visiting club tied the score. Ricorda increased the lead 12 to 10, by shooting a foul. Meehan tied the score with a field goal. From this time on Kingston spurred and captured the game. As usual the game was rough, the visiting club having a very solid looking squad.

The usual large crowd was present, many staying for the dancing following the game.

Eddie Phelan, representing the Triangle ownership of the Red Sox Park, Poughkeepsie, announced that professional football would probably be staged at the park on Sunday afternoons. Teams composed of former college stars are in the professional game today and can be booked to stage games.

PENNSYLVANIA USING SIMPLE GRID PLAYS

Coach Young Has Done Away With Complicated System.

Conch Lou Young, who succeeded John Heisman as director of affairs football at the University of Pennsylvania, this fall adopted the slogan "Not many plays, but have them perfect."

Young is steering the right course. Every season football teams are ruined by half learning 35 to 50 plays and persons wonder why they lost. The players had too much to remember. Mentally they were strong, but their mechanical execution was poor. Fundamentals had been neglected in the wild desire to keep the other fellow fooled.

Simplicity, power, paucity of plays is the keynote of a strong offense. Young has endeavored to follow this basis scheme at Pennsylvania.

For years it has been Andy Smith's system at the University of California to bowl over the opposing teams with a repertoire of about six or eight plays. In fact, in the preliminary games not more than three or four have been used in running up big scores.

Glenn Warner has not given Pitt a flock of plays, and still the Panthers have been able to make a lasting record. It has long been a Warner byword among rival coaches: "He can tell you where the plays are coming, and they are so well perfected that it is virtually impossible to stop them."

Penn football authorities feel that the principal trouble with last year's team was that the men were asked to absorb too many plays.

BALKED AT PURPLE PRUNES

Chinese Said His People Wouldn't Take "Death" Colored Package Offered by California.

The following is the marketing experience of the California prune growers, says The Nation's Business. Prunes "go" with rice, and so the prune growers sent men to China to see whether a market could be created over there. The scouts reported that there were comparatively few among the 400,000,000 Chinese who could afford prunes, but that there were enough to justify the trial. "You will have to give away samples at first," they said, "because the Chinese don't know what California prunes are."

So small packages were prepared, with two or three prunes to a box. The prune-growers thought the very look of the package was appetizing. They called in a Chinese to see what he thought of the plan. And he threw up his hands in horror.

"You can't give those things away," he said.

"Because the prune on the cover of the package is purple. Don't you know that purple is the color of old age and death?"

The prune growers hadn't known, of course, but they profited by the advice and devised a new package.

Supply and demand, it is clear, are not the only factors which govern value.

Changing Color With Heat.
Members of the Physical Society in London were interested at a recent meeting by an exhibition of specimens of paint which change their color with variations of the temperature. One of these paints is red at ordinary temperatures, but turns black in a few seconds when warmed in front of a store, or otherwise heated to 200 degrees Fahrenheit. Another paint is yellow until heated to a temperature of 113 degrees Fahrenheit, when it becomes dark red. They are called "heat-indicating paints," but are little more than scientific curiosities.

It Depends.
